It's not, really... The pieces of paper used to be redeemable for bits of silver. But then they quietly revoked this convertibility, so now the masses are stuck with the paper. If it crashes they lose everything.

Sorry, but... when you stop and think about it, isn't all money/currency equally meaningless and absurd? It only has value because we've all decided to agree/pretend that these things (gold, platinum, shiny rocks from the ground, whatever) have value... Seems to me this is hardly more absurd than any of the other 'real' currencies, let alone weird crypto-currencies. In fact, it's quite funny. At least.

Exactly. Currency used to be backed by gold. Now it's backed by nothing. I read that Singapore has one of the highest rates of gold backing its currency, but even that is only 4% of it's total currency. It's absurd when you think about it.

Coiney was a scam from the start with a huge premine (devs kept 66 Billion coins for themselves before letting anyone else mine) and it is a pump and dump designed to take advantage of greed and of lazy news organization's reliably predictable appetite for celebrity controversy.

Dogecoin on the other hand was never premined and has no celebrity association apart from a kind old Japanese woman's photo of her rescued dog and is the second most mined script coin behind litecoin and one of the fastest growing online communities.

Kanye West threatens suit over Coinye currency

By Julian Hatten

COMMENTS 2

Lawyers for Kanye West have filed cease and desist papers to halt creation of the virtual currency Coinye West, The Hill has confirmed.

The internet money, which became a sensation online in recent weeks, is modeled after the rapper's name and bears a cartoon version of his likeness on its website.

For West and his lawyers, that amounts to trademark infringement and copyright violation, they alleged in a letter sent on Monday.

"The COINYE WEST mark is substantially similar to the KANYE WEST mark in sight, sound, meaning and commercial impression," Brad Rose, a partner at the Pryor Cashman law firm, wrote in a letter obtained by The Wall Street Journal.

"Given Mr. West's wide-ranging entrepreneurial accomplishments, consumers are likely to mistakenly believe that Mr. West is the source of your services or is, at the very least, affiliated with, or has sponsored or endorsed the cryptocurrency."

Rose wants the Coinye West creators to abandon their effort, and shut down the website and social media accounts associated with it. If they don't, he threatens to "pursue all legal remedies against any business that accepts the purported COINYE

WEST currency."

The anonymous creators behind the currency seem to not have backed down.

The currency was originally set to launch on Jan. 11, but the date has been moved up to Tuesday evening "due to legal pressure," they said on their site.

Virtual currencies like Coinye West exist only online, but can be traded for cash or, in some cases, goods and services. The most well-known of the fledgling currencies is bitcoin, which supporters have tried to convince regulators and lawmakers is a safe and reliable way to transfer money.

Dozens of copycats have had an easy time starting their own Internet currencies by modifying Bitcoin's code, which is open source.

Some, like Coinye West, seem to have been created more in jest than anything else, though they can nonetheless be exchanged for money.

On their website, the currency creators assert the name is all in good fun.

"We would like to make it clear that we are entirely independent of the man, and there should be no confusion as to the intent or origin of this project. The name 'Coinye' is intended solely as parody, not an indication or implication of endorsement or involvement," they wrote.

Bound 2 Happen: Kanye West Demands Coinye Programmers Shut Down the Digital Currency

The currency is launching today despite legal pressure.

Kanye West is not into crypto-currency. When a group of seven anonymous programmers recently announced that they would be launching Coinye, a Bitcoin cloned named for the rapper, West's lawyers jumped into action and issued a cease-and-desist letter yesterday, arguing that the currency is trademark infringement. But it looks like it's way too late—Coinye is going to launch today.

LUCAS JACKSON/Reuters/Corbis

Ye's lawyers complain that Coinye is deliberately confusing its users. "Given Mr. West's wide-ranging entrepreneurial accomplishments, consumers are likely to mistakenly believe that Mr. West is the source of your services," read the letter. That confusion could benefit Coinye's programmers, who will likely hold a majority of the currency and profit if Coinye were to suddenly go viral, gaining real-world value.

The success of crypto-currencies is based on popularity: the more people using a currency, the more its value rises. One reason Bitcoin's price is back hovering around $1000 is that it has the widest user-base of any digital currency, but Dogecoin (currently worth less than 1/100th of a penny) also recently made waves by piggybacking off of an already viral meme and finding an immediate audience with Internet geeks everywhere.

Crypto-currencies are also almost impossible to stamp out. Once their algorithm engines start generating coins, there's no way to stop people from using them, save suing each and every one of the account holders. That's why Coinbase's programmers are rushing their invention out, starting at 7 PM PST tonight, according to the countdown on their website. "We want to release this to the public before the man can try to crush it," the programmers told the Wall Street Journal.

While it's not a shock that Kanye's trying to kill Coinbase, it's surprising that the rapper hasn't launched his own name-brand crypto-currency already. What could be more pimp than minting money with your own face on it?

Kanye West is trying to block the release of a digital currency named after him called Coinye West.

The rapper failed to see the funny side with the launch of the cryptocurrency.

Instead, his lawyers Pryor Cashman have sent a cease-and-desist letter to the anonymous programmers behind Coinye West accusing them of infringing on West's trademark.

In response, Coinye West had its launch moved forward to last night from January 11.

They tweeted: 'WHO GON STOP ME HUH. Coinye feelin' the heat, gonna spread what we got so far before the bigwigs steal our work!!'

The letter threatens: 'If you fail to comply with these demands, we will notify the cryptocurrency community at large of your infringing actions and pursue all legal remedies against any business that accepts the purported Coinye West currency.'

Dear Sir/Madam

Thank you for your interest in our roulette wheel based on a current internet meme Coinye Coin. Our team is not associated with original coin developers in any kind. However here is some additional information that might be to an interest to you.

The Coin itself is based on a parody of some sort of a "Pop"-Star, though previously our community has never heard about him previously. Supposedly this coin release has spiked a huge amount of interest to the "Pop"-Star you represent. Eventually we have found out that Coinye Coin is a parody based on a parody (episode Fishsticks from a television series South Park (Season 13, Episode 5 (Does that make it parody in square?)) In our Democratic society we highly regard the importance of parodies in every day's life, and following the importance and sanctity of this rule is the way of our life.

Moreover we would like to say that no further actions will be taken until a personal video on behalf of Kanye West is published in which he kindly asks us to remove roulette wheel based on his geopolitical, religious or any other possible insults, personality damages of any sort or inconveniences this roulette wheel has provided.

Hereafter I have attached a link that leads to your personal account on the CoinyeCasino.com in which I have included a free 2500 CoinyeCoins for you to either play the roulette or to proceed with withdrawals: <http://www.coinyecasino.com/?1aed06213acd1debfad5c85847dca6488a2006ffb90da17f333677b14d5c7768> (2500 CoinyeCoins are completely available for your personal disposal of any sort you like. Now you can freely enjoy yourself being one of the richest people of the world if overlooked by CoinyeCoin amounts that are available.)

P.S. - We would also want 4 sandwiches from your side. (2 with ham, 1 with salmon and 1 with chicken-bacon)(However note that sandwiches are completely negotiable.)

P.P.S. - In our current jurisdiction cryptocurrencies such as CoinyeCoins do not bear any resemblance to any of the real money assets. However please follow jurisdiction under which you are currently located.

Yours Faithfully,
Aleksandrs PR&Marketing, CoinyeCasino

Kanye West threatens legal action against Coinye programmers over digital currency

Users who receive the new Coinye coins can take them directly to the new Coinye Casino to play some classic European roulette or save them hoping they catch on and grow in value.

Fans who receive Coinye coins can take them directly to the new Coinye Casino to play some classic European roulette.

They think Coinyes are forever.

The founders of a new Kanye West-themed digital currency are defying a legal threat from the famous entertainer and promising to give out thousands of newly minted digital Coinye coins to online users Wednesday.

Users who receive the new Coinye coins can take them directly to the new Coinye Casino to play some classic European roulette or hoard them hoping they catch on and grow in value.

The coders reportedly plan to release the coins in blocks of 666,666 – a nod to West's rumored affiliation with the illuminati – up to a pre-set maximum.

"We haven't heard from any lawyers yet, but we'd love to give (West's attorney) some house credit for a few free roulette spins," one of the programmers behind Coinye Casino told the Daily News in

The programmer, who used the name Jonny Bravo, said the CoinyeCasino.com team is prepping even more games for Coinye users after the site opened for "real play" early Wednesday.

It was Monday that West's Manhattan-based lawyer sent a cease-and-desist letter to the anonymous coders behind Coinye claiming copyright infringement.

The logo for the new cryptocurrency features a cartoon version of Kanye West with his trademark slatted shades.

"Given Mr. West's wide-ranging entrepreneurial accomplishments, consumers are likely to mistakenly believe that Mr. West is the source or your services," lawyer Brad Rose with Pryor Cashman said in the letter obtained by the Wall Street Journal.

"We are just a few guys who want to take cryptocurrency to the mainstream," the anonymous founders wrote online as they moved their launch date to Tuesday night from later in the month.

"We would like to make it clear that we are entirely independent of (West), and there should be no confusion as to the intent or origin of this project," they said. "The name 'Coinye' is intended solely as parody, not an indication or implication of endorsement or involvement."

Cryptocurrency is invisible money released from a network that's preprogrammed with a certain number of coins distributed over time to users who unlock them, often times by solving complex math problems.

The coins are an invention of the network founders, and they derive any potential street value from their popularity and scarcity.

Bitcoins have been around for years and become so popular they've attained street value in this manner.

Some supporters say the point of cryptocurrency is to create an international system free from government regulation that acts as a cheap, egalitarian version of mainstream banking services such as Western Union.

Attempts to reach West's lawyer and the Coinye coders were not immediately successful Wednesday.

Is the fish tail on the coin picture an allusion to the epic South Park fish stick episode?

Welcome to my digital world

Coinye West coin is 100% fraud from the get go.

Posted on January 8, 2014

Here's their original announcement.

DROPPING JANUARY 7 2014. 7 PM PST. No screwed up fake "fair" launches. shyster devs, muted channels, and fked up wallets. We will be releasing password protected, encrypted archives containing the binaries and source for the wallet and daemon BEFORE LAUNCH, with the passwords to be released at the specified time. We will work with multiple pools to orchestrate a PROPER and FAIR release.

Now let's see:

No screwed up fake "fair" launches

There were over 1.3 BILLION COYE premined. The wallet started out on block 2000+. 2000*666,666 per block = 4,333,332,000 COYE. Update: There were premined but only 759 blocks, which is still over 505 Million coins after a claim of ZERO.

shyster devs

Again, there were over 1.3 BILLION 505 Million COYE premined.

muted channels

#coinyecoin was muted all the time in between, especially when problems with pools came up.

and fked up wallets

No wallet at all till long after launch for non-pool owners.

We will be releasing password protected, encrypted archives containing the binaries and source for the wallet and daemon BEFORE LAUNCH, with the passwords to be released at the specified time.

Password was released way after the specified time.

We will work with multiple pools to orchestrate a PROPER and FAIR release.

The whole reason of the password protection was probably to delay pool owners, while their own private pool was up and running.

This has been posted all over the coinyewest sub-reddit and other places. This coin is completely done for and will never be worth anything. I myself have already switched all my mining power back to DOGE. I myself am going back to sleep to try and rid myself of this migraine that I woke up with.

Re: Infringement of KANYE WEST Mark and Other Violations

Dear Sir or Madam:

This law firm acts as litigation counsel for Kanye West and his affiliated companies. For the reasons set forth below, we are writing to demand that you immediately remove from your website cryptocurrencies that infringe the intellectual property rights of Mr. West and his companies. In addition, we note that failure to comply with this demand after receiving this notice concerning the unlawful character of these cryptocurrencies may subject you to civil or criminal enforcement penalties.

As you are aware, Mr. West is an internationally renowned musical artist, songwriter, producer, film director and fashion designer, to name just a few of Mr. West's endeavors. Mr. West has won twenty-one Grammy Awards, making him one of the most awarded artists of all-time. He has been named one of the 100 most influential people by Time magazine and is routinely listed by Forbes as one of the most successful people in the world.

Mr. West's tremendous success and notoriety has catapulted the KANYE WEST brand into a commercial asset of incalculable value. In addition to his common law rights, Mr. West owns numerous federal trademark registrations for the KANYE WEST mark for various goods and services as well as several pending applications. See, e.g., U.S. Reg. Nos. 3,648,799; 3,648,800; 3,648,801; 3,648,802; 3,648,803; and 3,648,804. Without doubt, the KANYE WEST mark is famous and is entitled the broadest protection under the law.

It has recently come to our attention that you are, without authorization, engaging in the operation, exchange, sale, transfer, purchase and/or otherwise using in commerce the cryptocurrency offered under and/or in connection with the COINYE WEST, COINYE and/or COYE mark(s), through your website located at the domain name <newchg.com> (the "Website"). The cryptocurrency offered under and/or in connection with the COINYE WEST, COINYE and/or COYE mark(s) is a blatant attempt to trade upon the goodwill associated with Mr. West, as consumers are likely to mistakenly believe that Mr. West is the source of the cryptocurrency offered in connection with the COINYE WEST, COINYE and/or COYE marks or is, at the very least, affiliated with, or has sponsored or endorsed the cryptocurrency, when, in fact, the cryptocurrency is not sponsored by, authorized by, endorsed by or affiliated with Mr. West.

Accordingly, we demand that you immediately remove the COINYE WEST, COINYE and/or COYE cryptocurrency from your Website. Furthermore, we demand that you immediately cease and desist from the following activities:

- (i) engaging in the operation, exchange, sale, "mining", transfer, purchase, or otherwise using in commerce, of an "alt coin" digital or cryptocurrency bearing any photographs or the likeness of Mr. West in any manner that is likely to cause confusion, mistake or to deceive the public into believing that the operation, exchange, sale, "mining", transfer, purchase or otherwise using in commerce of the "alt coin" digital or cryptocurrency originated with Mr. West or that there is any affiliation or connection between Mr. West and the operation, exchange, sale, "mining", transfer, purchase or otherwise using in commerce of an "alt coin" digital or crypto currency; and
- (ii) assisting, aiding or abetting any other person or entity in the operation, exchange, sale, "mining", transfer, purchase or otherwise using in commerce of an "alt coin" digital or cryptocurrency bearing COINYEWEST, COINYE or COYE as a trade name, trademark, brand name, as an Internet domain name, as a digital currency name, as a "cryptocurrency", as an "alt coin" name, or in any other source-identifying manner.

In the event that you do not immediately comply with the above demands, you are hereby put on notice that you will be named as a defendant in a formal legal proceeding, and we will seek to obtain a temporary restraining order to enjoin you and the Website.

In addition, we note that, as set forth in the Department of the Treasury's Financial Crimes Enforcement Network Guidance FIN-2013-G001, an administrator or exchanger that (1) accepts and transmits a convertible virtual currency or (2) buys or sells convertible virtual currency for any reason is a money transmitter under FinCEN's regulations, unless a limitation or exemption from the definition applies to the person. Refusal to remove the cryptocurrencies COINYEWEST, COINYE or COYE from your website after receiving notice of the unlawful nature of these cryptocurrencies may subject you to government enforcement action.

Mr. West takes these violations of his intellectual property very seriously and seeks to resolve this matter without resort to litigation including filing an application for a temporary restraining order. If we do not hear from you by 8:00 p.m. E.S.T. on January 8, 2014, we will assume that you have no desire to amicably resolve this matter, and we will proceed accordingly without any further notice to you.

Nothing herein shall be deemed to be a waiver of any of our client's rights at law or in equity; all such rights being expressly reserved.

Very truly yours,
